

Archonix Systems, LLC Purchases Public Safety Assets of Cross Current Corporation

(Mt. Laurel, New Jersey, February 24, 2010) Archonix Systems, LLC, a public safety software company, has announced that it has purchased CAD, RMS and Mobile public safety software and certain other assets from Cross Current Corporation of New Hope, PA. In announcing the transaction, Archonix's President and Chief Operating Officer, Anthony Graham, stated that this investment continues the Archonix strategy of geographic and product expansion in the public safety software market through the acquisition of quality assets. "This is our fifth acquisition of public safety assets in the past seven years and, in many ways, our most significant. The assets and relationships that this acquisition will bring will permit us to come closer to fulfilling our goal of becoming the premier provider of public safety software to first responding agencies. With these assets, Archonix will now manage public safety customer relationships from coast to coast with customers in 25 states and over 200 locations. Mr. Graham stated further that this transaction and the personnel being added will permit Archonix to deepen its support for customers and add new features to its extensive product offering.

In discussing the transaction, Cross Current's President, Sam Hirsh, also commented "Cross Current is very pleased to have found a buyer such as Archonix that is committed to the same principals of customer support and product innovation that have been our hallmarks over the years. Cross Current is a multi-dimensional firm that feels the time is right to concentrate its efforts in its development of new technologies for the public and commercial markets and this acquisition will mean that we can focus our attention on these promising new avenues for the corporation. While it is with mixed emotions that we divest both assets and customers that have meant so much to us over the years, we know that they are in the right hands and will thrive under the guidance of Archonix. It was important for us to turn these assets over to a Company that we knew would continue our high standards for support and dedication to customer service."

About Archonix Systems, LLC

Based in Mt. Laurel, New Jersey, privately held Archonix Systems is a rapidly growing provider of public safety software products. Archonix's full suite of products serve police, fire and EMS departments, corporate security groups, correctional institutions and local and regional data sharing repositories. Subsequent to its acquisition of the Cross Current assets, Archonix will manage over 200 public safety customer relationships in 25 states.

About Cross Current Corporation

Cross Current Corporation is a full service firm specializing in custom software development and systems integration. Cross Current has extensive experience in analyzing, designing, developing, deploying, and integrating enterprise systems in e-business and e-government. Our reputation is built on timely and within-budget delivery of high-quality, customized applications and services. We have extensive IT experience in banking, IT audits, telecommunications, staffing, healthcare, and the public sector.